I tried this: `public class SomeType { private final SomeType mParent; public SomeType(SomeType parent) { this.mParent = parent; } public boolean getIsSomething() { return true; } public void addObserver(Observable observable) { Flux something = Flux.fromIterable(observable); mParent.addObserver(something); } }` But I get the following error message when I compile: Flux has no type parameters A: Flux is a generic class. You need to specify the Type. Flux something = Flux.fromIterable(observable); should be Flux something = Flux.fromIterable(observable.getType()); The present invention relates to mixtures of polyolefin/inorganic nanocomposites and to their use for the reinforcement and/or the barrier properties of polyolefins. In particular, it relates to the use of such mixtures in the production of articles made from polyolefin, such as, for example, films, fibers, woven and non-woven textiles, injection molded articles, monofilament, multifilament, and extrusion coating of polyolefin. In the polymer industry, there is an ongoing need for thermoplastics having improved barrier properties and toughness, for example for Download .Yemenis are marching on the capital Sanaa to protest the rule of President Abdrabbuh Mansur Hadi, whom they accuse of being a puppet of Saudi Arabia.

Thousands of demonstrators marched through the city on Saturday chanting slogans against the president and demanding his resignation. Hadi is head of the Executive Authority - Yemen's interim government - formed by the internationally recognised president, Ali Abdullah Saleh. The protests have been sparked by recent fighting between Shia Houthis rebels who seized large parts of the capital and areas west of Sanaa. Carrying pictures of Saleh, many of the demonstrators have called for him to be reinstated as president and for Hadi to step down. The protesters say the Iranian-backed Houthis have taken over Sanaa, which is also controlled by Hadi's regime, and cannot be trusted. The Islamist movement is backed by Shia Iran and has now come to control large parts of Yemen, including the capital. what is this insanity and why? I have to admit that I don't have a good answer to that. I was thinking about Mathers' Stonewife, a spiritual mate type relationship. It seemed to me that that would be a difficult relationship to actually get someone in modern times, having to arrange all of that with a person from another time period, a different culture, and for a specific purpose. Now with the internet and on-line dating, everyone can be in an on-line relationship with anyone that they want to be with, without having to do all of those things. Sure it's convenient, and modern (and the unrealisticness of it). But still that's what is happening to men and women and has been for hundreds of years (think of the hoop jumping the boy scouts do to earn their eagles)...yet an ancient people, now extinct, adopted the exact opposite of that. Maybe it's just me and what I want. If it makes anyone feel any better, I think this is just a trend. It will pass as people become less stupid and less gullible than they are
