They've been trained to protect humanity from extraterrestrial threats. Now the three of them are under attack by a diabolical force, with an even more terrifying agenda than destroying them. Who could be behind it? What is their true nature? What will these alien threats do next? A Scientist's Best Friend The rocket stop incident is currently being written, and the goal for November is to have the first chapters of the story ready for free launch for the waiting public to read for free. Then, the story will be published on sites like kindle, as well as buying hard-copy books. We are also working on actual book covers which will be released this month in time for the October 28 launch date. Our promise to You The Rocket Stop Incident is a mature horror story which will be appropriate for those ages 14 and up. We want to offer a horror experience which is unique in our genre and will capture the imagination. In writing the story we are seeking to answer some big questions about all things alien: their origin, nature, their motives and goals. Read for FREE on Kindle Our free story will be available from September 16 to October 28th. We'd love to hear your reaction, as well as any input you can offer. We would also love to add you to our pre-launch mailing list to let you know when we launch our Kickstarter project. Note: Both Kindle versions and hard copy books will be available for pre-order and release on September 28th, 2017, and go up for purchase on Amazon on November 1st, 2017. "A chilling and provocative tale of life in a high security research facility, where the scientists are the most dangerous prisoners of all." "I'm looking forward to being blown away by The Rocket Stop Incident this year!" - David Dalglish, author of The Grey and Children of the Vault. "The Rocket Stop Incident is a very cool story indeed. I was very impressed by the characters and the way you wove the story. Great job!" - Dan Goethals, author of The Ravenous People and Zygote: The Extreme Cases. "The Rocket Stop Incident will have you running for the exits!" - Kevin J. Anderson, author of The Non-Human Engineers and, The Monster of Florence. "

Pinboard: Store: Games Description X-note is a blend between Visual Novel and Dating Sim. Follow the story of Essi as she pursues the truth of her mother's death. The game spans 30 days, of which you can train Essi's psychic abilities, explore the school, collect notes, and make choices to determine her fate. STORY Ten years ago, Essi's mother died in a strange accident. She left a USB flash drive with a locked folder called "X-note". Unable to understand the purpose of it, Essi continued living her life as a normal junior high school student. However, Essi is hardly normal, for she possesses power beyond normal humans. Essi's quiet life was interrupted by a sudden visit by a young man named Yuon. He asked her to investigate a murder case and a mysterious disappearance in the Xen Institute, a school deeply connected to Essi's mother. Tempted by the possibility of unlocking "X-note" and solving her mother's mysterious death, Essi decided to take his request. However, what awaited her there was a lot more than what she could possibly imagine. What's new in Monolith: Relics Of The Past:

- Sent to Bumblebee's village, Senran and the girls arrive to a bustling city with pirates running amok, crime lords running the underworld, and the local authorities in the hands of the Shaolin sect. Can Senran clear the case before the hotshot Shaolin police officer, Aidee Asuma, develops an embarrassing crush on her? [AGAIN THIS IS AN ARC REVIEW, BUT IT DOES ACTUALLY START ALMOST TWICE AS SOON AS THE LAST CHAPTER IS CLOSED] "Are you a Pure Senteon?" "It is you!" "Oh, Professor Katsuki, it is you!" "He can't be!" screamed a little boy as he ran toward him. "Young man, apologize to the professor, or get ready to turn those plants into an army!" "I'm sorry! I'm sorry for dragging you out here, Professor Katsuki! I was simply trying to protect my home! Please! I will do anything I can to repay you!" The little boy ran back to his home in a fit of fear. Professor Katsuki was a legendary illustrator. He was widely known for drawing wonderful and beautiful art, and he made legends of himself. Most of the children in his neighborhood had wanted to be like him. Due to him being a travel illustrator, he went to some of the uninteresting places. Never the less, he made the best out of the poor locations he was sent to. Despite being an adult, he taught young kids as well. The most that he'd ever had someone call him "Profess" was in elementary school. This little boy was a good learner, as well as a lot more homely than most of his classmates. Not to mention he was working on being a conversationalist so he could convince his parents to fix up his house. "Look, Professor, I got you some tea." This child chuckled. Not one of his appearances but one of his old friends had come to visit him in the local abbatoir. Who said they'd much still be friends after years they'd spent together was a fool. Seeing that a giant werewolf was approaching him, would he really want to hang out with this man? But who was it? When he became aware of more and more people watching him, he thought that these must be his fans, or at least a large group of them. Wearing one of his ear

Before we dig into the project I would like to touch on a personal experience. I learned a lot of skills and improve some myself by participating in the Game Jam. These are some of them:

- How to use git (Version control)
- How to setup an architecture (flow of code/content and how to manage things)
- How to create a simple website
- How to use discord/Slack/team chat
- How to use video and photo editing software (i.e. DaVinci Resolve, Tears of Steel)
- How to design a website (or any kind of art)
- How to learn from others

A few months ago I have participated in the World Cup. It was a big, crazy experience, something I will never forget. The team of six of us had to cover a distance of more than 30Km. I think it was about 10-11 hours driving. For this game jam we have chosen a location which is an abandoned cinema. We are using environment and motion controllers to immerse you in a different experience. What's more, we have decided to let you control the car yourself, letting you choose the direction of the car and let yourself out of the box on your own. We also have worked on a few new features. For example the concept of teleportation - car will aim towards the ground (which means the car will stop of the move from the default movement). This will let the player stay focused in the game, not worrying about running out of space or missing the teleportation spot. We also made some new features to the cars movement - there will be a return function, which will make the car go back to its original point in case it spins off or gets disturbed by an object. There will also be a lot of billboards to collect and paint on them. The player has the car and can move as he/she sees fit. Looking forward to sharing the experience with people and building something new. The making of the game has been a big learning process for me. I think for indie game developers a good mentor is essential to cover all aspects of game development and give advice. The purpose of this project was to add an extra challenge to me and hopefully motivate me to keep learning. When entering the project I have had very

System Requirements For Monolith: Relics Of The Past:

The body proportions of the female, both the front and back, are a bit shorter than those of the male. However, the female body is much slimmer. In particular, the waist and the ankle are both very slender. In addition, the female body is shorter and a bit sturdier. In short, you need to prepare well for an opponent and show your skill to make the most of the excellent weapon balance. Reference: Note: There
