You're able to find stylish items in even the smallest of areas. You've probably tried using a beautiful side table to help with decorating, but what about using the headboard of a double bed for a side table? You may be surprised at how this great idea can serve a variety of purposes! Serve as a side table This simple item is one of the most versatile pieces in your home that you can use as a side table, table lamp or even footrest. This can help you to save the hassle of having to invest in furniture that doesn't fit with your current decor. The headboard of a double bed can be used as a stand for different accessories like candlesticks and vases. This furniture piece can also double as an artwork. Store all your stuff Your book collection, your sewing machine, your favorite remote control device, your workout clothes, a cozy blanket - everything can be stored in this spot to make your home looking tidier and neater. This can save you a good amount of space in your living room. Take your dining table Dining tables are usually big pieces that have a lot of space. You can use the space that is left on your double bed headboard to set a table for dining and cooking. You can place a basket and utensils in this space. You can even place a lamp on top of this as an accent, instead of the typical bright lighting. Make a haven Living rooms typically have lots of items and clutter. This can make it uncomfortable and unappealing to be in a space that's full of clutter. You can make a haven in the back part of your living room with this idea. I like to create a quiet space to read or study in. This piece of furniture is something that's going to make the room more peaceful and relaxing. This is the perfect furniture to fill the back of a small room where you would have your sofa and two chairs. You can always place your
