I have done google but still nothing worked for me so that I.Q: MySQL, Oracle and SQLite triad We were asked to compare SQLite, MySQL and Oracle in terms of collation comparison full text search SELECT queries Our suggestions were: SQLite: it's document-centric, very fast MySQL: it's schema-centric, optimized for large tables, some kind of "must" indexing supported Oracle: same as MySQL with extra features We were asked to explain why we made these suggestions. We were also asked to elaborate on our analysis. I'd like to hear your suggestions as well. A: Note that this is a subjective answer and is not based on objective standards. I'm going to start from the bottom. it's document-centric I can't comment on Oracle, but I have found that SQLite is good for a document-oriented database. There are thousands of "application-level" frameworks, for example, for PHP, Java, Python, and Ruby. it's very fast I can't comment on Oracle. I don't use it. MySQL's performance is generally fine, but there are some areas where it is not as fast as it could be. I have heard of people having issues with it, and I have encountered this myself.
